Best Season to Travel

The best exodus time to travel the Upper Mustang region is from March to November. Although we can be taken this trip in the winter season, the temperature is strongly cold and might not be suitable for all travelers.

Weather

We have tried to short describe the weather, temperature, and climate of the Upper Mustang which is very important before visiting here.

1. Spring season (March/April/May): This is one of the best seasons to trek in all of Nepal with the Upper Mustang. The temperature of days is approximately 15 to 21 °C. The temperature is neither too cold nor too hot for a hike. During the night temperature can drop from -7 to -1 °C. The spring season experiences you with a unique Tibetan culture, miraculous landscape, and archeology alongside the topography of Mustang.
2. Summer season (June/July/August): Generally the months of summer are warm. The days and nights are warmer than due to the year. The temperature of the day is about from 18 to 28 °C and during the nighttime, it has gone from -2 to 0 °C. This season is wet all over Nepal but Upper Mustang is quite different where travelers experience no rainfall and an arid landscape. The land is positioned in the rain-shadow area of the Annapurna region. You can travel to Upper Mustang this season.
3. Autumn season (September/October/November): The season is also best for trekking and tours in Nepal Himalaya. The month of autumn provides you with incredible sights of the Upper Mustang from everywhere. This season's temperature of the day starts from 12 to 20 °C and during the nights colder temperatures can go down to -7 to -2 °C. Thus, make sure that you have good windproof equipment for these months.

4. Winter season (December/January/February): Days temperature is around 0 to 5 °C and it goes down to -25 to -20 °C during the night in Upper Mustang. These months experience too much snowfall and local people descend to lower regions. During these months, Trekking and any trip to Upper Mustang can be challenging to start for trekkers. If you are adventure lovers and want to travel in the winter season experience freezing weather, occasional snowfall, fewer crowds, and majestic views of the Mustang. Please put on some warm and windproof clothing to keep your body warm before sunrise and after sunset in the mountain.

Finally: Given the above information will help you to prepare before departing for Upper Mustang. You must know about the average temperature, weather, and climate of Nepal Himalaya including Mustang.

Permits and Fees

The Upper Mustang is a restricted region of Nepal where foreign travelers should obtain a special entry permit to visit here. The department of immigration issues permits for foreign tourists. Single permits are not allowed, issued only to a group which means you have at least two visitors in a group. If you are sole tourists, let us know, and we will arrange permits by joining you with the next visitor's group.

We need your four passport-size photographs and original with a valid passport to obtain the restricted region permits. Upper Mustang permit costs US $500 per tourist for 10 days. It is one and only one for 10 days, not night. An additional day will be charged US $50 per day. The journey begins and ends from Kagbeni where your permits will be checked by ACAP and police.
